

Betting Measure Meets Final Test With State Voters

Pari-Mutuel Legislation Which Survived Debate and Court Fight Only Big Question

LaGuardia Fights

Manhattan's Mayor Says Proposal Retrogression, Not Progress

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP).—The constitutional amendment to legalize pari-mutuel betting, on horse races, which survived vigorous debate in two legislatures and a court of appeals fight, meets its final test as the only question of state-wide importance in tomorrow's election.

The proposal, opposed by New York City Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who termed it "not progress but retrogression," commands paramount interest because, for the first time, voting in a pre-presidential year will involve not a single issue that would indicate the possible disposal of New York's 47 electoral votes in the 1940 national election.

Republicans nullified political importance of the sole "straw" offered when they endorsed Associate Judge Irving Lehman, brother of Governor Lehman and Democratic nominee for chief judge of the court of appeals—the only state-wide office at stake.

No Assembly Battle
In previous years the annual struggle for control of the state Assembly provided a barometer. Assemblymen were elected to their first two-year terms in 1938, however, under a constitutional amendment that doubled their length of service.

Tomorrow's six scattered contests for seats, necessitated by death or resignation of incumbents, will not affect Republican domination of the larger house.

These and other local races, however, were believed responsible for registration of 5,207,661 voters, only 352,000 under the near record number who qualified for the 1938 gubernatorial election.

Interest centered in the pari-mutuel amendment as many religious groups and other opponents pressed final efforts to bring out an upstate vote they hope will overcome New York City's expected heavy approval of the proposal.

Asks Support
Harold R. Moskowitz, state president of the Affiliated Young Democrats, Inc., urged 100,000 members to support the amendment "not as a partisan proposal, but one which deserves the support of every voter on its merits alone."

LaGuardia is expected to lead the amendment as the first step to what might become a complete let-down and open gambling.

Both LaGuardia and the Rev. Wilbur T. Clemens, general secretary of the United Church of Christ, disputed the claim of the amendment's author, Democratic State Senator John J. Dunigan, that its approval would make available $10,000,000 of state tax revenue annually.

The mayor said if the $10,000,000 figure were correct, it indicated to him that a larger part of the betting would have to be done by persons who cannot afford to lose.

Mr. Clemens asserted that even if such a tax return were possible the required $340,000,000 of wagering would adversely affect industry and business.

Court Gives Ruling

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP).—Deciding another conflict between federal and state power, the Supreme Court ruled today that mortgages on Maryland property executed to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation were not subject to state documentary and recording taxes. The government contended that the HOLC is "an instrumentality of the United States engaged in the functions of the federal government," and that state taxation "is precluded by constitutional limitation."

Goddard Signs Order Confirming Sale of Chichester Property

Auction Transactions to Be Final Unless Appeal Is Taken; Men Seek Work Elsewhere

Federal Judge Goddard has signed an order confirming the sale of the William Schwarzwalder & Company, Inc., property at Chichester, which was offered for sale by Joseph P. Day, Inc., auctioneer at Chichester on October 28. Unless an appeal from the order is taken the sale will be final and the village as a company unit will cease to exist.

Those who bid in the 44 homes, factory, store, recreation center and community hall will receive individual deeds to the property which they bid in at the auction and from now on the village will cease to exist as a company owned community.

Machinery Sold
Prior to the sale on Saturday, October 28, the machinery had been sold for $8,000 and the sale of the real property netted slightly over $32,000, bringing the total amount up to approximately $40,000.

"Once before the property was offered for sale as a unit and the bid of about $30,000 was rejected and the property was put up at auction, first as an entirety and second as separate parcels. When the auctioneer offered the entire village as a unit on October 28, there was no bid and then the 64 parcels were put up as separate parcels and all were bid in. In the sale was several buildings, a large parcel of land and the factory building in addition to the 44 dwelling houses.

The factory building was bid in by William Rappelyea and Son for $2,100, and Mr. Rappelyea stated that he would endeavor to open the plant and give employment to a part of the skilled woodworkers of the village. He estimated he might employ about 40 of the men.

A complete audit of the liabilities of the company, which once was a leading manufacturer of high grade wood products, has not been completed but will amount to close to twice the amount of the purchase price brought at the auction sale.

About a year ago it was stated that the liabilities of the company were $22,000, but to this will be added the taxes which have accumulated since as well as the cost of the sale and other fees. The liabilities are those of various creditors and it is expected that within a few days a complete audit of all claims against the property will be completed.

Appeal Is Unlikely
Since the effort to sell the village as a unit failed and the auction conducted a week ago brought a sum considerably greater than the first offering, it is expected that the sale will be final and there is little possibility of an appeal being taken.

Several of the men since the factory closed have sought work elsewhere and some have found employment on the New York City waterworks project at Lackawack, while others have been given temporary employment on the highways during the past summer. Others have been placed on relief jobs.

The large Manor House, which is purported to have cost $20,000 to build, was struck off for $5,300 and will become the summer residence of Louis Berglas, Brooklyn manufacturer.

Mosley's Car Stoned

London, Nov. 6 (AP).—Sir Oswald Mosley's automobile was stoned last night after the Fascist leader had told a crowd, "we want peace because we want to get on with our job of building up the British Empire." Sir Oswald was not struck although several other persons were slightly injured.

California and Ohio Citizens Will Give Old-Age Pension Proposals Last 'Once-Over' Before Voting Tomorrow

(By The Associated Press)
Citizens of California and Ohio gave old-age pension proposals a last once-over today before voting their convictions in tomorrow's year elections.

Office seekers in a dozen other states argued largely local issues, with election of mayors in Philadelphia, Detroit and San Francisco outweighing in political interest campaigns for three seats in the House of Representatives and for governors' chairs in Kentucky and Mississippi.

Herbert S. Bigelow, leader of the Ohio pension drive, said last night that if his proposed amendment to the state constitution was defeated, he would draft a revised proposal increasing the taxes for pension payments.

To guarantee every retired Ohioan over 60 a pension of at least $50 a month, Bigelow would collect a tax equal to one-fourth of the federal income tax, and a tax of two per cent of the value of all land worth more than $20,000 an acre.

New Hay Gets Sally In Frightful Mess

Peabody, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP).—The aroma of a crop of newly-harvested hay got "Sally" into all kinds of trouble today—and the fire department was called to straighten it out.

For days "Sally" has sat on the ground-floor of the cattle barn at the Ashman Farm, looked up into the hay-loft and, like Ferdinand, just smelled. The temptation was too great. Today, farmers had to drag the young 400-pound heifer down 25 steps from the loft. How she made the ascent, Chief William Mahoney is still trying to figure out.

Max, 70, Is Dead In Brussels; Mayor For Record Period

Burgomaster of Brussels Once Declined Office as Belgian Premier for Lesser Job

Brussels, Nov. 6 (AP).—Adolphe Max, burgomaster of Brussels, who was imprisoned by Germany during the World War and who had held office continuously ever since, died today at the age of 70.

Adolphe Max, who once declined the Belgian premiership to remain mayor of Brussels, broke all records as holder of that office. He was named burgomaster on October 12, 1919, and was chief citizen of the Belgian capital for a longer period than any of his predecessors throughout the city's centuries of history.

His heroic stand against the German invaders on the outbreak of the war in 1914 made him easily the most popular man in the whole of the tiny kingdom, and he never lost his place in the hearts of all Belgians.

Honored by many foreign countries, he preferred to remain plain Monsieur Adolphe Max in his own. When King Albert offered him a barony as reward for his unflinching services to the capital and the country, Max refused.

"Adolphe Max" sounds better than "Baron Max of Brussels," he said. Burgomaster Max was popular with the Brusselsites, however, long before the war made him a national hero. He had been mayor for six years and city councillor for eleven years when the war broke out, and had never lost an opportunity of mixing with the citizens of Brussels high and low.

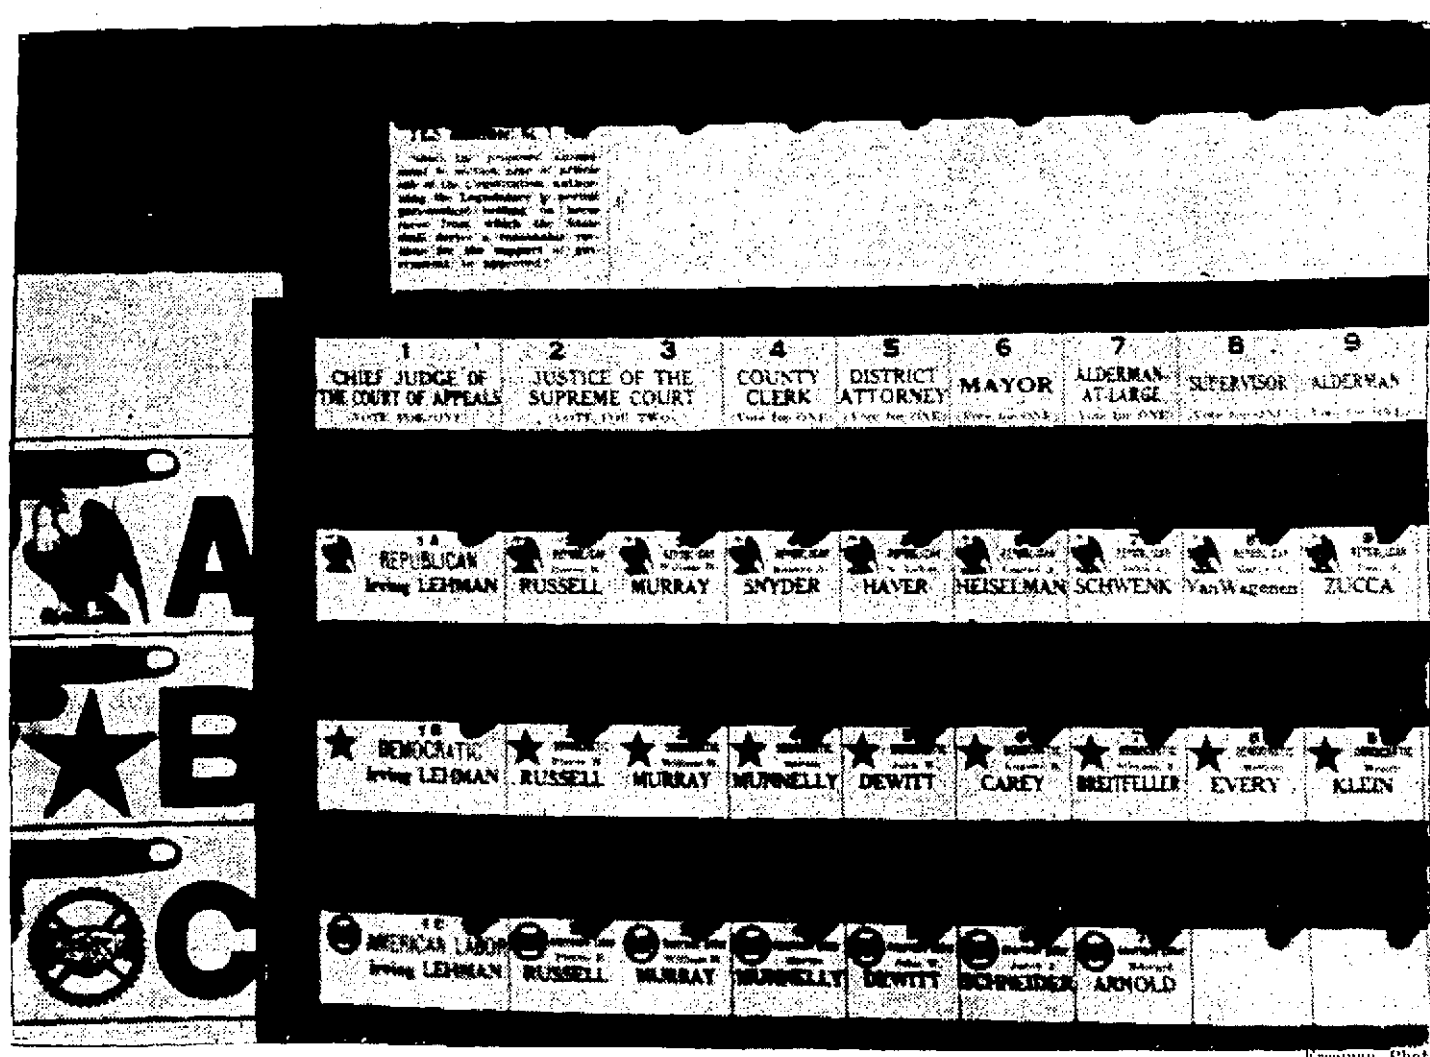

"Our Max" to All
He was at ease at an official banquet or quaffing a glass of Brussels' famous beer with the barges in "Les Marolles" heart of the old city. He was "Our Max" to one and all.

At every carnival, he would be there to kiss the carnival queen, and when grief afflicted his city or his country he was the first to

Russia Appeals to Working Classes Of France, Britain to End Warfare; Calls U. S. Neutrality Mask for Gain

This Is How Tomorrow's Ballot Looks

The naming of county and city offices is the most important job of tomorrow's election. The only other candidates on the ballot outside of the city and county are those for Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals for which Irving Lehman is the candidate of the Republican, Democratic and American Labor parties. The other offices to be filled are those of Justices of the Supreme Court for this district with Justices Pierce H. Russell and William H. Murray the unanimous choice of the three parties. Shown above is a facsimile of the ballot to be in the voting machines in the various districts of the city. In row A are the Republican candidates including that of county clerk with Robert Snyder of Saugerties, the Republican candidate and Martin Munnely, of Port Ewen, the Democratic and American Labor Party choice. N. LeVan Haver is the Republican nominee for District Attorney with John DeWitt named by the Democrats and American Labor Party.

In Kingston Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman has been re-named as the Republican choice for Mayor and opposing him on the Democratic ticket is Former Mayor Eugene B. Carey with Jacob Schneider named by the American Labor party. John Schwenk seeks re-election as alderman-at-large on the Republican ticket and opposing him are Stephen Breitfelder, Democrat and Edward Arnold, American Labor candidate. The ballot above also shows the first ward candidates for alderman and supervisor. Dr. H. P. Van Wageningen is named by the Republican party as its choice for the office of supervisor in the first ward with Paul Zucca as the candidate for alderman. Merritt Every is the Democratic candidate for supervisor and Henry Klein for alderman. The American Labor party shows no candidates for alderman and supervisor in the first ward. In the upper left hand corner is the only proposed state-law amendment to be voted on. If adopted it will legalize pari-mutuel betting on horse races in this state.

First Snowstorm Brings Out Plows In Mountain Area

Snow to Depth of 8 Inches Slows Motor Travel on Minnewaska Trail; Sleet Is Heavy

For the first time this fall snow of sufficient depth fell Sunday to require plowing. The county Highway Department encountered its most serious difficulty on the Minnewaska Trail where snow to a depth of eight inches was plowed.

Rain which started to fall early Sunday morning turned later to sleet in Kingston and made streets slippery with slush which disappeared later when the sleet again turned to rain.

At 4:30 o'clock a snow plow was sent to clear the Minnewaska Trail. At the foot of the mountain the snow was about four inches deep and gradually increased in depth until about eight inches was encountered at the top of the Shawangunk mountains.

Snow at Ellenville

In southern Ulster there was no snow but in various other localities there was some snow and sleet. At Ellenville snow fell to a depth of about an inch and a half but during the night it cleared from the roadways and today the

Heiselman Is Pledged To Continue Program

To the Voters of Kingston:

Tomorrow you will select the man to be entrusted with the management of your city government for the next two years.

During the campaign, now ended, I have tried to tell you of the problems and aims of your local government, and the success with which those problems have been solved during the difficult years of our administration.

You know the kind of government we have given you. It is the same kind of government you approved by your votes of endorsement in 1935 and 1937. We accepted these endorsements as a mandate from you, and we have given you a continuation of the same kind of government during 1938 and 1939, because, by your votes, you said that was the kind of government you wanted.

During the campaign I have not attempted to abuse or defame. I have tried to be fair and honest. I have simply quoted facts and figures from the official records. These records are always open for public inspection.

Neither have I appealed to class or prejudice. I am the representative of all of you, regardless of your race, creed, color, political affiliation or station in life. During my service as your mayor, I have tried to conduct my office and myself with fairness and justice to all, which is my constitutional right and my constitutional duty.

During the campaign, I worked in the city hall during the day and addressed meetings at night, where I enjoyed meeting many of you. I am sorry that my duties prevented me during the day from calling on you for a chat, but the pressure of business—your business—kept me on the job and prevented me from seeing you.

I have tried to merit your confidence by doing everything in my power—regardless of hours or toil—for the welfare of the men, women and children of this community.

If my work as your mayor has met with your approval, and you wish me to continue to serve you, you may say "Yes" by voting for me tomorrow by pulling down the lever over my name on Row "A" of the voting machine, and by leaving it down.

I give you my solemn pledge that I will serve you in the future as faithfully, earnestly and wholeheartedly as I have served you in the past.

Sincerely yours,
CONRAD J. HEISELMAN

Connolly Citizens Petition for Bus For 20 Students

Circular Is Being Passed Around; Act Prompted by Recent Measure in Legislature

A petition is being circulated among taxpayers of Connolly and vicinity in an effort to obtain bus transportation for an estimated group of 20 children who attend parochial school in Kingston, it was announced today.

Action by those responsible for the petition, it was stated, is prompted by the recently adopted state law which permits free bus transportation for children attending parochial schools as well as those attending public schools. Those favoring added transportation facilities for the parochial school children of the small community across the Rondout creek seek to have the school board meet in special session and make provisions for a vote on the proposal.

Not Empowered

A member of the school board stated today, however, that insofar as he was able to determine, the school trustees were not empowered to bring up this question before its annual meeting next May. One local taxpayer points out that there are "some 20 children in South Rondout, who attend St. Peter's school in Kingston. These pupils, it is further contended, have a long, cold walk in the winter months over the Rondout creek bridge with frequently an icy wind blowing."

This one taxpayer adds to the argument in favor of transportation that these pupils are "especially entitled to the privilege granted them by the state legislature. The proposal was taken up by interested, public spirited people of the community some six weeks ago."

According to those favoring immediate action on the transportation issue, the local school trustees contend that it was a matter which should have been brought up at the spring meeting of the board.

Petitioners' Contention

Those supporting the petition, however, declare that the law was not passed until the last session of the legislature. It is the contention of the petitioners that

Premier Says Capitalistic System Is Sure to Fall, Because of Workers and Peasants

Stalin Applauds

Molotov's Speech Against United States Is Favored by Dictator

(By The Associated Press)

The working classes of Britain and France were urged today by the Communist International to halt the European war.

From its Moscow headquarters the Comintern appealed for British and French workers "to go against those who favor continuation of imperialistic war."

The appeal was in a manifesto celebrating the 22nd anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov today assailed the United States for repealing the arms embargo, asserting it was "only a mask to cover their struggle for profit."

In a speech opening a three-day celebration of the bolshevik revolution's 22nd anniversary, Molotov also attacked Britain and France, accusing them of wishing to prolong their war against Germany.

Stalin Applauds

Joseph Stalin, War Commissar Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff and other leaders were among those in Bolshoy Opera House who applauded his words which included a sweeping attack on capitalism.

Another anniversary was ignored by Italy, the second anniversary of her signature of the anti-Comintern pact which linked Italy, Germany and Japan against Communism. Last year the signatories, who later were joined by Hungary, Spain and Manchoukuo, exchanged congratulatory notes, but since then Germany has signed a non-aggression pact with Russia.

Italian newspapers instead devoted attention to Premier Mussolini's declaration Saturday that Italy was strengthening her forces for the future.

Small Island Occupied

French military sources said a German advance patrol had occupied a small island in the Rhine, but had been driven back to their own shore by French fire.

French economic experts accused Germany of trying to offset the British-French sea blockade and the United States arms embargo repeal by closing European sources of supply to the allies.

The French said Germany was attempting to get European neutrals to agree to trade only among themselves and not sell to Britain or France.

Germany called repeal "unneutral" and intimated that intensified sea warfare might be a result. German newspapers and semi-official comment expressed bitterness against President Roosevelt, attributing the lifting of the embargo to him.

Britain had an increasingly difficult problem to handle in India where native congress party governments have resigned in protest against Britain's failure to grant Indian independence or to discuss the Indian white war was going on in Europe.

Lord Linlithgow, the British viceroy, invoked "emergency measures" to govern the provinces where the governments quit office and said he was starting new efforts to bring rival political factions together.

Boy, 7, Is Safe

Winslow, Ariz., Nov. 6 (AP).—Fellow grade school pupils spoke in awe of the exploits of Bruce Crozier, 7, who survived almost a week of hunger and exposure in one of Arizona's wildest areas. But matter of fact forest service officials raised the question of repayment of approximately $4,000 spent in feeding and equipping 800 searchers. Bruce, recuperating in a Holbrook hospital, just wise-cracked with nurses. His ordeal ended late Saturday as he walked into deer hunting camp in Wildcat canyon, 60 miles south of here.

Congress May Put Pressure on Japan In Economic Way

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—A prediction that the 1940 Congress might follow up the administration's neutrality program, now in full operation, by authorizing economic pressure against Japan was made today by legislative leaders.

Chairman Pittman (D., Nev.) of the Senate foreign relations committee said that unless relations with Tokyo improve before the Japanese-American Commercial treaty expires January 26, Congress undoubtedly would enact its resolution empowering the President to embargo "any or all" exports to Japan.

"It is entirely fair that Japan should be warned of the consequences of its attitude in China has been in total disregard of the rights of the United States and other countries."

Pittman was in the small group of congressmen Saturday who saw President Roosevelt sign the neutrality bill repealing the arms embargo and setting up a "cash and carry" system of trade with warring nations. The legislation does not apply to the undeclared Chinese-Japanese conflict, however, because President Roosevelt never has found formally that a state of war exists in the Orient.

12 Dysentery Deaths

Norwich, Conn., Nov. 6 (AP)—Dr. Chester Waterman, superintendent of the Norwich State Hospital, disclosed today that "little outbreaks" of dysentery in the female infirmary had taken a toll of "about 12 lives" during the past three weeks, but now was believed to be under control. The head of the institution stated that approximately 30 more of the 220 patients, all between the ages of 65 and 100, had been stricken, but appeared to be recovering. The building has been isolated since the outbreak.

Architects Asked To Enter Contest

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Public Buildings Administration announced today a $5,000 prize competition for the design for a $500,000 postoffice and court house at Jamestown, N. Y.

In addition to the $5,000 prize, the winning architect will be paid an additional $5,000 as consultant in connection with working drawings and specifications which will be prepared by the public buildings administration.

John M. Carmody, federal works administrator, said the competition would be limited to registered architects in region three which comprises the greater part of New York state with the exception of New York city, Long Island, Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Orange and Sullivan counties and parts of Ulster and Dutchess counties. The region includes Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

First Snowstorm Brings Out Plows In Mountain Area

road from Kingston to Ellenville was free of snow.

While Minnewaska Trail was covered there was but little snow on the Cragmoor mountain route a few miles southerly along the Shawangunks.

In the Pine Hill area between four and five inches of slush made travel dangerous and this morning a plow was sent out to Pine Hill to shove the accumulation of slush off the road. At Nich Creek it was reported the roadway as in bad shape this morning but it was expected that warmer weather today and travel would dry that route after the slush has been removed by plows.

This area was hit with the tail end of the gale that swept over the Atlantic seaboard on Sunday, which left behind it in the city 1.64 inches of snow, sleet and rain.

While the storm raged here Sunday afternoon and evening no damage was reported to the police department. At the height of the storm the temperature dropped slightly below the freezing point.

Gale Lashes East

(By The Associated Press)

A 65-mile-an-hour gale that lashed eastern seaboard states with sleet, heavy rains and snow subsided today, leaving in its wake much inland and waterfront property damage.

The storm, traveling north from Cape Hatteras, battered the coastline last night with a fury reminiscent of the New England hurricane of September, 1938. The disturbance was described as a "tropical cyclone" by Professor Charles P. Brooks of Harvard's Blue Hill Observatory. Dr. Brooks, who sent up a recording balloon said the temperature dropped to 58 degrees below zero at 38,000 feet.

A striking feature of the storm, he added, was the excessively dry atmosphere at 4,500 feet.

Clearing skies were forecast for most of the area, but temperatures tumbling to sub-freezing, levels made highway traffic perilous. Snow plows were called out to clear highways in Vermont.

Several small ocean vessels were pounded to pieces and coast guardmen answered distress calls from pleasure craft from New Jersey to Boston.

Four exhausted men were rescued from a 35-foot disabled motorboat off New Bedford, Mass., by a coast guard power boat attracted by makeshift flares of gasoline-saturated rags.

Three Craft Sought

Three small craft reported in trouble off Rhode Island still were sought by coast guardsmen. The storm forced a steamship to heave to off Nantucket.

Along Massachusetts' north shore scores of automobiles were stalled when waves whipped over sea walls splashed their ignition systems. Windows were broken in at Worcester by gale winds. Water surrounded several seaside cottages.

The chief damage inland was to communication lines, trees and shrubbery. At New York city, an all-day rain of 1.4 inches replenished metropolitan water reservoirs depleted by drought.

Pennsylvania, western New York and most of the Appalachian area was covered by a wet snow. It ranged from 1 1/2 inches at Roxbury, N. H. and 4 to 6 inches at Bellows Falls, Vt. to 15 and 20 inches in Virginia's Shenandoah valley, where snow fell in some sections for 33 hours.

Snow-blocked highways stalled 200 motorists near Bridgeville, N. Y.

Ellenville Woman Sues Storekeeper For Fall on Steps

An action brought by Mildred Kagan against Abe Masors, Ellenville paint store operator, was taken up for trial before Justice Schirick this morning in supreme court. Mrs. Kagan, formerly a music teacher in Ellenville, seeks damages for injuries which she suffered when she allegedly slipped on an icy step of the Masors property when she called to pick up her wedding gown.

Isaac Clayman of New York appears for plaintiff and Andrew J. Cook for the defendant.

Mrs. Kagan claims she went to the Masors store to pick up her wedding gown which had been made by a dressmaker and left at the Masors property when the dressmaker went out. She claims she lost $26 per week for four weeks and also seeks for the injury. Her contention is that the step was in an icy condition and that she fell on her way out from the place.

The defendant claims that Mrs. Kagan was not a business visitor at the place but that she had called upon business of her own, that of picking up the wedding gown which had been left at the home of Masors by the dressmaker when she went out.

Mrs. Kagan claims that she was injured and several days later when she was married she was unable to participate in the reception following her wedding, but was compelled to remain in a reception room where she greeted guests but did not take part actively in the reception.

Justice Schirick reserved decision on a motion to dismiss the plaintiff's case made at the close of plaintiff's testimony and allowed Mr. Cook to put in the defendant's case. Mr. Cook moved for a dismissal of the complaint on the theory that no negligence had been shown and further on the grounds that the defendant was not liable under the law for any damage which the plaintiff might have suffered when she went to the premises upon an errand of her own and not connected with the business which Mr. Masors conducted at the place. It was the defendant's contention that she was not invited to the place of business which she operated.

It was testified that snow had fallen during the night and Mr. Masors said he had employed men to clear the snow off the steps early in the day but the snow had continued and at the time of the accident a slight snow had been falling.

The case was tried before the court without a jury. Jurors were excused until Wednesday morning.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—The recovery curve flattened out further in today's stock market and leading issues, at the worst, were off fractions to 2 points.

While extreme declines were reduced on many instances near the final hour, dealings slowed on attempted come-backs, with transfers for the day at the rate of approximately 1,200,000 shares, or considerably less than in Saturday's proceedings.

Recently buoyant aviation took a rest. A large proportion of the turnover was still accounted for by stocks selling around or under $10 a share. There were a few 10,000 to 15,000-share blocks showing trends slightly downward.

Europe provided scant speculative stimulation, brokers reported, and, with tomorrow an election-day holiday, and the markets again closed Saturday for Armistice Day, many traders inclined to lighten commitments or remain in the do-nothing class.

Bonds were just about steady, as were European markets. Commodities were moderately mixed. Backward stocks most of the time—some ultimately revived—were Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright, Consolidated Aircraft, U. S. Steel, Western Union, Central Electric, Allied Chemical, Anaconda and John-Manville.

Tilting downward in the curb were Lockheed, Creole Petroleum, Hayden Chemical and Aluminum of America.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 6, 1939.

UP TO THE VOTERS

Tomorrow the voters of Kingston will be called upon to select the administration heads of the city government for the ensuing two years. Mayor Heiselman throughout the entire campaign has pointed to his record in the same business manner that he has conducted the affairs of the city. That he has done an excellent job as chief executive of this city is known by everybody.

A vote for the Heiselman administration means a vote for the continuance of efficiency in local government—the elimination of expenditures of public funds where it can be done without detriment to the city. There is no issue in this campaign, except this: Either you are for the continuance of his program for sound government or you are against it.

If you are satisfied then go to the polls tomorrow and elect the Republican ticket. The Republican Party has made good in the past and it may be depended upon to make good in the future. Voters realize that it is the best policy to retain in power a political party which has a record of achievement behind it.

Two years ago the citizens of this city went to the polls, pulled down the lever for C. J. Heiselman and went home with the feeling of having done their part for the future progress of Kingston. His record proves that they voted wisely both for themselves and for the entire community.

Do you want the continuance of good government—a hundred cents of results for every dollar spent? If you do, you will vote the Republican ticket tomorrow.

To vote the Republican ticket, pull levers down over names in Row A and leave them down.

"ENEMIES" WITHOUT ENMITY

A Halloween party worthy of special attention was the one held at International House, in New York city, a residence for foreign students at Columbia University. There were 1,500 participants from forty different countries, and they danced and frolicked happily without apparent restraint or ill-feeling. There were Britons and Czechoslovaks and Germans and Poles and so on through the long list.

Instead of masquerade costumes, students wore the peasant dress of their native lands. The effect was colorful and gay, and the evening's entertainment followed that happy lead.

There were only two reminders of the current unpleasantness in Europe. One was the admission charge, which was collected chiefly to raise a fund to aid foreign students stranded here by war.

The other was a refreshment stand which called itself the "Britanna Night Club." The beer sold there—again profits going to aid refugees—was labeled as a brew from Munich and was sold in a tent bearing the sign: "A.R.P. Air Raid Shelter and Bar." Caricatures of Hitler, Stalin and Chamberlain decorated the walls. The floor show was devoted to kidding those three gentlemen.

All this international joshing was carried out in good humor and no one appeared to resent it. Some of those foreign students no doubt will become American citizens, but many of them will return some day to their home lands. Can they ever introduce the spirit of International House to Europe?

GROUPED ADVERTISERS

Newspapers are to be the principal medium for a joint advertising campaign in which bread, cheese and tea interests will cooperate to promote their various products simultaneously. The idea apparently is that these three items in combination will have more appeal than any one of them alone.

If the campaign is a success it may put this nation in the afternoon-tea class, which many Americans will consider a good thing. Such a change in our habits would hardly nullify the achievements of the American Revolution, and it might make inroads on the cocktail hour, which has become a serious problem in some respects and places.

After the tea, bread and cheese people have shown us how effective this sort of advertising may be, what groups will follow? There are endless possibilities which may put new variety in advertising and new profits in many spots.

Commander Byrd better put wings on his Antarctic tractor and call it the Snowbyrd.

 MENTAL AND PHYSICAL DISTURBANCES

As a woman approaches middle age and the menopause or "change of life" comes to mind, she has visions of some of her relatives with the distressing symptoms of hot flashes, sleeplessness, irritability, and excessive blood flow. Until the past few years, this condition was considered "natural," something that must be faced and perhaps endured for a number of years.

Today physicians are equipped with a remedy that greatly lessens all the symptoms of the menopause and makes it possible for women to go about their home, social, or business life with a fair degree of comfort.

In an article on the treatment of the menopause, Dr. I. Henderson-Smythers, in Southern Medicine, reports results obtained in a group of women at the menopause receiving treatment by the use of extract of the ovary for periods ranging up to three and one-half years.

The most common symptoms occurring were hot flashes, irritability, exhaustion, emotional instability, headache, irritation of the genital parts, and sleeplessness.

After first giving treatment by injections of estrogen in oil three times a week until improvement was noticed, the injections and amounts were decreased until but one injection each two weeks was given. Finally after two months of the injections, the estrogen was given by mouth in most cases.

"In the groups of patients under treatment for an average duration of 15 months, 20 out of 24 were completely relieved while under treatment and six remained free from symptoms six months to two years after treatment was stopped. Of those patients treated for a shorter time than 18 months, all obtained some relief."

When we think of how many women not only suffer from hot flashes, irritability, and exhaustion, but undergo such terrible mental disturbances that it is necessary for them to enter mental institutions, the use of this new treatment gives much for which to be thankful.

The idea behind the use of extract of ovary is that it is the wasting away of the ovaries, which is causing the symptoms, the giving of this extract of ovary prevents shocks during the wasting process.

Send your request to The Bell Laboratory, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the name of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Question Arises About Wagner Act as to How Much Freedom Workers Enjoy in Bargaining

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 6.—The principle of democracy, so deeply cherished in the political world, was supposed to have been applied to the economic world in the enactment of the Wagner labor relations law. But a decision just rendered by the National Labor Relations Board has raised the question of whether workers really have freedom of action in making their collective bargaining contracts, or whether the will of a government board in Washington may be imposed upon them to tell them what they can do.

Twenty years ago, the employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company formed a union. The labor board says it is a "company union" in the sense that the employer is alleged to dominate it or help finance it. The law prohibits that type of company union, but does not forbid a union of employees wholly independent of the employer as well as of national unions. The only requirement is that the employer shall not interfere with the freedom of choice by the employees.

Then there arises a minority group of employees who want to form another union, usually to be affiliated or integrated with the A. F. of L. or the C. I. O. The first line of attack is to break down the independent union. The Wagner labor law furnishes the ready weapon. If proof can be offered that the independent union at one time—perhaps as far back as 20 years ago, long before the law was passed—was formed with the aid of the employer, it becomes tainted in the eyes of the labor board and is ordered to be "dismantled."

For three years now, the labor board has been ordering "company unions" in various businesses to be dismantled. But now, in a case just decided, the board has ordered the employer to refund all the dues collected on behalf of the independent union through the company's deductions from payroll each week since 1935. No consideration is given to the fact that the money may have been legitimately spent for the carrying on of the independent union's affairs.

The workers have nothing to say about the labor board order and thus a relationship which grew up long before the Wagner Act was passed is now held to be unlawful. The penalty or remedy in this instance need not have been the one selected by the labor board. It could have selected another means of accomplishing the same end. That it had the right to impose a penalty because the Congress gave broad discretionary powers to the board to fix almost any economic punishment it pleases, subject to court review. But Congress also has the right to amend the labor law and state specifically just what the penalties are to be.

In this and other instances, the question will arise why the labor board did not merely put the matter up to the workers by a secret ballot. If the employees felt that the existing independent union served their needs, they could say so in a ballot and give legal ratification to the existing union.

This principle is specifically recognized by Congress under existing law where voluntary agreements covering, for instance, a "closed shop" are permitted. Ordinarily it is a violation of law for an employer to make union membership a condition of hire, but, if a union and an employer agree upon it in a private contract, the employer can refuse to hire anybody unless the worker joins a particular union. Congress, therefore, could amend the law to say broadly that employers and employees may, together, so long as no employer coercion or improper financial aid is given.

But, at present, the board, possessed of a broad veto power already given by Congress, can intervene and prevent the employees from bargaining on their own terms with the employer. If, moreover, this provision of the existing law in constitutional, some future labor board order, some future order an A. F. of L. or a C. I. O. union dismantled where the "check-off" now prevails and compel a refund to members of all dues collected every year since 1935—long after the money has been disbursed. No such interference with the operations of labor union, bona fide or company dominated, was ever contemplated in the original discussions of the law when it was passed.

Chapter 26
Bone For A Dog

"I DIDN'T know as 'ow 'e was dead. But there was a bit of bloody paper on the ground beside the watch. I got to thinkin' about it, and it looked funny. I thought as 'ow I'd wait and see. And I did, and swelp me that's all I know about it."

"What happened to the bloody paper?"

"When I thought about it, and went back to get it, it was gone."

"When was that?"

"The same morning. About an hour after I found the watch."

"Who had been along the path during that hour?"

"Everybody. They goes to the University that way."

"The path goes to the river?"

"There's that branch path goes to the University."

"So, you found the watch before you come to the branch in the path?"

"Yes."

"And you've kept it hidden ever since? Haven't told the police?"

"I thought there'd be a reward if I kept quiet long enough."

"There will, Higgins, there will. I'm sure of it."

"I don't know nothink else. I found the watch, and I kept it, and I didn't rightly know what to do with it, so I buried it in the garden, and then when you come around with all yer questions I thought as 'ow likely you'd find it, so I piled the rocks on the ground, like, and then I told the women was foolin' around the rocks and actin' funny, and I thought I better dig it up Swelp me, that's all."

"What women?"

"Mrs. Forrester and that Church girl."

"Oh, Miss Temple? Well, that's close enough. Now, who's your owl, Higgins?"

Higgins was bolder. "I don't know nothink about owls," he said flatly.

"No? Well, perhaps not. You may be telling the truth. We'll let it pass. I won't keep you any longer. I suppose you know that I could put you in prison for what you know?"

Higgins groaned. "I know it," he said despairingly.

"Well, remember it. You may go—but I'll be sending for you one of these days, Higgins. And you might tell your owl friend he'd better study hooting. He goes flat."

Michael went through the dark house, after the man had gone, in search of Tuck and Bunny. He found them in the little room at the head of the stairs that was Tuck's particular delight. It was fitted up with a little desk and a telephone, and was bright with chintz, and from it she directed the affairs of her household. Charlotte Jean entering into the game with solemn enjoyment. Tuck was sitting at the desk when he went in, and Bunny curled lazily on the couch, listening, as usual, to Tuck.

"Where've you been all these hours?" Tuck demanded, more as a matter of form than anything else, for she did not wait for an answer. She went on—"Michael, we've got a marvelous idea!"

"What, another?"

"He kissed her on the tip of the nose, and sat down in the chair beside her desk. "Umhm. Really. We're going to have a tea party, on Sunday, in the garden, and invite all the suspects, and their friends; and we're going to introduce pertinent subjects of conversation quite pointedly, and listen, and watch. It will be interesting to see what happens."

"Bright idea," said Michael approvingly. "Now, I might have thought of that. My motto always is 'When in doubt, lead trumps'."

Late Supper

MICHAEL lay flat on his back in the sun porch swing-hammock, his feet straight up in the air, propped against the supporting ropes. Tuck was sitting at the end of the hammock looking out into the kitchen garden.

"What's the row out there?" Michael asked lazily.

"It's Gordon Deane. He's got a crush on Charlotte Jean, because she gives him cookies. I can't think of anything else that would keep him hanging underfoot all the time. He's fun. I like him."

"What's he doing now?"

"If you'd raise yourself one foot you could see. Tuck said scornfully. "Putting me to all the labor of talking."

"Labor?"

"Shush. He's fixing the clothes-line for her, or something. He's up the pole, anyway. And the barking is Fred, down below, trying to coax Gordon down from damper heights."

"Does Agamemnon enjoy barking in his own garden? I shouldn't think he'd stand for it."

Tuck laughed. "They've signed a sort of armed neutrality pact, ne and Fred," she explained. "If Fred comes within a yard of Agamemnon he stands in danger of losing a couple of eyes; otherwise Agamemnon stalks about majestically with his tail up and never looks at him."

"There was a silence. "Oh dear," said Michael at length.

"Michael, if you ask where dinner is, I shall murder you. I am fully aware that it's late. It isn't our fault. It's the butcher boy."

"Late?"

"Oh, no. He came to the other houses at the usual time. But he didn't have our meat. He was sure he had, but he hadn't. He had to go back after it, and he just this minute got here. Charlotte Jean went to the gate and got it. She talked to him vigorously. I could see her."

"It won't be long now," Michael murmured contentedly.

"Not long, Michael," she turned to him suddenly. "Do you think they might be in code? Really?"

"I sincerely hope not," Michael murmured. "I'm starving."

"Idiot! The letters."

"Oh, dear," Michael sighed again.

"There," said Tuck suddenly. "She's putting it in the pan. She just threw the bone to Fred."

"Thank heaven," Michael said. "I don't think Agamemnon will appreciate that," Tuck said again. "He's sitting on the fence with an expression of utter disgust on his face."

A little later there arose on the still air a low, long moaning, Gordon's voice came from the heights of the pole. "Hey you, Fred, stop that howling!" But Fred did not stop. He moaned again, his doggy voice rising to a frenzied squeal on the last note.

Michael stood up suddenly. "What's he moaning about?" he asked sharply.

"I don't know," Tuck replied. "Do you suppose he's got a bit of bone caught in his throat? It sounds as if he were in pain."

He's Dead?

MICHAEL was through the door in a second, and out with the dog. Gordon knelt by Fred and looked up at Michael anxiously. "He just kind of laid down," he said. "It looks like he's got kind of a pain, maybe."

Fred was lying on the ground. He stopped moaning and looked up at Gordon pleadingly. Gordon patted his head. "There, there, old kid," he said. "What's the matter with you? Eat too fast?"

Fred's head went down on the ground. His eyes were still on Gordon's face. His stumpy tail wagged once, feebly, as if to answer his master once more.

Once more, but never again.

"My God!" said Michael softly. "Fred! Fred!" Gordon called, terrible fear in his tone.

The dog's eyes were open and staring. Michael put his hand over the doggy heart.

"I'm afraid . . . he's a pretty sick dog, Gordon," he said slowly. "I think we'd better send for the vet."

"The vet?" Gordon looked up at Michael. He looked back at the dog. He looked again at Michael with shrewdness and fear mingled.

"He's . . . he's . . . dead already, isn't he?" he asked. His blue eyes were full of pain.

"I'm afraid he is," Michael said, refusing to meet those eyes. "I'll carry him for you, old chap."

"No. He's my dog. I'll carry him." And Gordon bent, hiding the lower lip firmly caught between his teeth, and picked up the dog. Michael went as far as the gate, and then came rushing back to the kitchen door. His face was as white as paper and his eyes glazed.

"Give me that meat," he said to the startled maid. "Every bit of it, Charlotte Jean. You haven't tasted it, have you?"

"Why no, Mr. Forrester. That I haven't is something . . ."

"Wrap it up in the paper it came in," he commanded sharply. "Take it out of that pan, and wrap the pan. Don't wash it, and don't touch it. Do you understand that?"

"Yes . . . why yes . . ."

"He was gone, to the yard again. Tuck was standing where Fred had died. Her face was strange, frozen. At her feet lay the bone, half eaten, which had fallen from Fred's mouth. Michael slipped the piece of paper in his hand underneath it, and wrapped it carefully. He turned to her. "Do you want to come to town with me to eat?" he said, brusquely. "There's no meat here for dinner."

"Michael . . . was that meat . . . is it?"

"I don't know. You saw what happened to the dog. I'm going to take it to Headquarters. Do you want to come? I wish you would."

"I'll get Bunny."

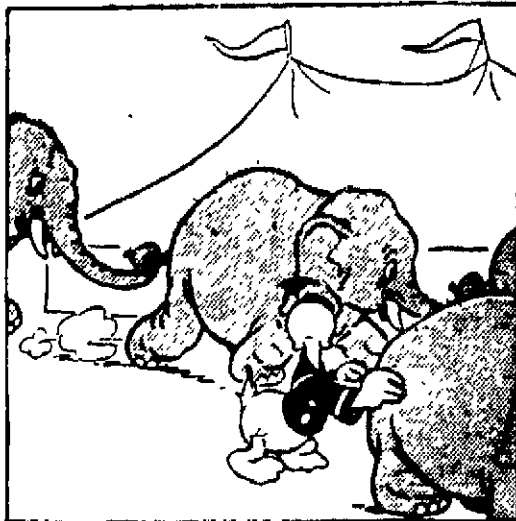

It was three very silent young people who came back to the house on the campus about half past eight that night. They had had dinner at the Cat and Fiddle after Michael had been in to Headquarters with the package of meat; the analyst, Dr. Jethro, had promised to start at it immediately, and give Michael a report sometime before morning. So they were prepared to sit up until the telephone call came.

Chicago—The minute Michael Briggs was born Saturday night he earned for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Briggs, the price of their hospital and doctor bills. It is because the hospital where he arrived offered those services free to parents of the 30,000th baby born there. Michael was born less than two hours after No. 29,999.

Russell Broughtons
Given YMFarewell

Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Broughton were joyously entertained at a surprise farewell banquet at Judy's Tea Room, Saturday night, by the YMCA Couples Club. The color scheme followed was appropriate to the season of the year with yellow candles on the table, yellow flower corsages, buttonholes and programs at each plate.

Dr. Julian I. Gifford serving ably as toastmaster brought the group merrily from the sublime to the ridiculous with his poems and stories about the assembled group.

"We shall miss Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Broughton," said Edward C. DeWitt, president of the Y Couples Club. "They have been real friends and willing helpers to the couples club and the YMCA. We do well to pay tribute to Russell H. Broughton, first president of the club. During his years of service he has always carried out his duties to perfection. We wish them health and happiness in their new home in Albany."

Toastmaster Gifford presented Russell H. Broughton amid the prolonged applause. Mr. Broughton said, "The YMCA Couples Club has been close to my heart. It has been a great pleasure to plan every other Saturday night on the good times at the Y Couples Club sessions. We have received more out of the fellowship than we can estimate in material wealth. We shall be thinking of you all our closest friends. Thank you for this splendid party."

"Russell H. Broughton put the enthusiasm into the 1937 campaign that inspired the workers to go over the top for the first time in many years," related General Secretary Robert L. Sisson. Mr. Broughton on becoming a member of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors, became active and was appointed chairman of the membership committee. He pioneered in formulating a membership policy and in working out a new plan for securing new members.

Community singing was led by W. W. Brady, Jr., and helped to liven up the affair.

A splendid tribute was paid to the untiring service and cooperation of Mrs. Broughton to the various committees of the club by Mrs. Edward C. DeWitt. Her genial personality and friendship will be missed. Toastmaster Gifford in his versatile manner lauded the honored guests and their many ways of helpfulness in numerous poems. All of the guests spoke of the loss to the city and the associations of Mr. and Mrs. Broughton and wished them success.

President Edward C. DeWitt presented to the honored guests two mahogany end tables as a token of the club's esteem. Hardly had they accepted the first gift when President DeWitt presented another, an album of pictures and autographs of each member of the club which was prepared by Mrs. Edward C. DeWitt.

Following the program the club members were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Davis at their home on Albany avenue. The committee who planned the banquet was composed of Mrs. Julian I. Gifford, Mrs. Edward C. DeWitt and Mrs. DeWitt Wells.

Good Taste Today

Behavior at a Dance

Dear Mrs. Post: The other night I went to a dance with Robert, my special boy friend. We danced the first dance together. Then another another boy asked me to dance and I danced with him. That made Robert furious. He is very jealous, anyhow, and he sulked the rest of the evening. He said I had no business dancing with another boy unless I asked his permission. I told him that I had never heard of such a thing, and that even if a boy does call for a girl, they are both supposed to dance with other people. The dance was a regular dance at the club we all belong to. I was right, wasn't I, Mrs. Post?

Answer: At any private or club dance you would, of course, be expected to dance with every one who asks you, and under no circumstances would you ask any one's permission. On the other hand, if you had gone with Robert to a restaurant where people dance, and John Jones, let's say, had come to your table and asked you to dance, it would have been inconsiderate to leave your host sitting alone at the table. (Asking his permission would not have made any difference.) However, if Robert had himself invited John to sit at your table, then the latter would naturally have been expected to dance, not too often, or for too long, but from time to time.

Junior's Company Manners

Dear Mrs. Post: My wife and I have different ideas about company manners to be expected of a six-year-old child. I would greatly appreciate your opinion on this question. In the first place, I think Junior wants to be polite, always, but he is a shy sort of child, who hates to talk to strangers. Yet, whenever we have guests, his mother makes him come in and say "How do you do" to every one, and then when it is time for him to go to bed, she insists that he come in again and bid every one good night. Last night we had a large party and my wife called out to him: "Junior! Come and say good night!" He made no answer and she repeated it louder. He called back, "I won't!" She then went upstairs and succeeded in forcing him to come down and say good night to every one. I said nothing before people, but after they had gone we almost had a quarrel—and then we agreed we'd ask your advice as to whether or not he may be spared the ordeal of saying good night, at least until he's a little older.

Answer: While it is excellent training to encourage a child to come in and greet company, and to say good night to company, I agree with you that too much of a point should not be made of it. If he is sitting in the room with you when people come, then he must of course say "How do you do," politely, and "Good night" before leaving the room. But if people are strangers and he is amusing himself in his own room before he goes to bed, it would, it seems to me, be best that you and his mother go upstairs and say good night to him. If you go one at a time it will make less disturbance than if you both leave together. If you can't leave unnoticed, then explain briefly, "I want to say good night to Junior—I'll be back in a moment." The really important point that his mother had to make was in not letting him say "I won't!"

One of the taxpayers favoring immediate action contends that the school board is refusing to call a special meeting "to give everyone in the village an opportunity to discuss the matter and also enable the commission at Albany to decide on the merits of the situation."

Trustee Fred Becker said this afternoon that it was his understanding to date that the board could not act before its annual meeting, but he said it might be possible that a special meeting could be called if the taxpayers demanded it and if the law provided for it. Similar efforts in the county and vicinity, he indicated, to get such school bus service, have been of no avail to date.

House Member Says Boost of $100,000,000 to Be

Appropriations

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—Swift acceleration of current naval shipbuilding is projected, well-informed legislators said today, to clear the way for the additional $1,300,000,000 expansion of the fleet to be submitted to congress in January.

Shortly after Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House naval committee disclosed administration plans to ask congress to authorize 95 new warships and almost 2,400 more airplanes, another House member said today that the navy already had decided to boost its next regular appropriation estimates by $400,000,000.

This would give the navy $1,300,000,000 for the year starting July 1, 1940—by far its biggest peacetime appropriation.

The increase was decided on, the legislator said, after the original estimates calling for about $900,000,000 were given to the House naval appropriations subcommittee.

Some congressmen expressed a belief that a substantial part of the proposed $400,000,000 increase in the navy's regular appropriation would be devoted to expanding shipbuilding and armament facilities at navy yards, besides assisting private shipyards to gear their plants for bigger loads.

Service Launches
Nursery Campaign
To Purchase Home

A financial drive to raise $8,000 to be used for the purchase of the Volunteers of America home on Barmann avenue, was launched Sunday evening at a union service held in the high school auditorium.

Because of the storm the attendance was not as large as expected. The principal speaker of the evening was Col. Charles Brandon Booth, national secretary of the Volunteers of America, and he made a stirring address urging the support of all in the drive which is now under way.

Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck is chairman of the drive, and workers will assist in making it a success. Captain Emma Brandt, speaking in the place of Adjutant Arthur G. Noble, who was prevented from attending by illness, outlined briefly some of the features of the work being carried on by the organization in this city.

Captain Brandt said that three years ago the Volunteers established a day nursery for the care of children whose mothers worked out. This nursery since then had been doing an excellent work. Another feature was the establishment of an emergency home for girls.

Two Winter Sports Title Contests Awarded to Ulster County

Rosendale and Phoenicia Named At Parley Upstate

Other Events Scheduled for Telemark Club on February 10 and 25 in Rosendale

The importance of Ulster county as a winter sports playground was acknowledged yesterday at Albany by the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association which awarded two New York state championship events to this section.

First on the list is the ski jumping tournament which will be held January 28 at Rosendale on the Telemark Ski Club slope. Phoenicia will be host to several hundred skiers February 4 when the slalom championships will be held on Split-Cat-Spit trail.

In addition to the events listed above, at which all prominent foreign and national stars are expected to compete, the Telemark Ski Club of Rosendale will hold an 18-kilometer cross country race February 10. On Sunday, February 25, at Rosendale Hill, the Telemark boys will hold competition for the Rosendale Township Association trophy.

No contest was held last year for the township trophy and two years ago one leg was captured by Nils Eie, of Oslo, Norway, former world's intercollegiate ski jumping champion. Eie at present is finishing his medical studies at Oslo.

Other Eastern Events

The U. S. E. A. S. A. will conduct the 1940 jumping and cross country championships at Laconia, N. H., and the men's downhill competition will be held at Adams, Mass. The women's downhill events will be held at Rutland, Vt. Yesterday about 200 delegates and members of 55 clubs around the Atlantic seaboard were present at the 18th annual session of the association, which was held at the DeWitt Clinton Hotel.

The association adopted a suggestion of the New York Ski Club of New York city that a class be established for veterans in addition to Classes A and B. The association constitution was revised to increase the number of directors from four to seven.

Elected to the board of directors were:

Birger Torrison, Norfolk, Conn.; Robert P. Booth, Manchester, N. H.; Roland Falmagne, New York city; H. C. Pollard, Lowell, Mass.; Blaine Langlett, Bergenfield, N. J.; Warren Chivers, Saxtons River, Vt.; and Arthur Draper, North Creek, N. Y.

Officers re-elected were:

Dr. R. S. Elmer, Bellows Falls, Vt., president; A. H. Kellogg, Schenectady, N. Y., treasurer; D. N. Burckett, Boston, first vice president; L. E. Briggs, Amherst, Mass., second vice president; and Miss Margaret Neyland, Bellows Falls, secretary and assistant treasurer.

Next year's eastern convention will be at Worcester, Mass., and will run for two days instead of one.

Names on the resolutions committee were Marvin Chandler, Thomas Russell and Ken Littleton, all of New York city; Henry Perkins, Boston, is committee chairman. The credentials committee is composed of George Maynard, Adams, Mass., and Walter Hicks, Mumford, Me.

Jackets Call Off Game with Trojans

The Kingston Yellow Jackets were forced to cancel their game with the Port Jervis Trojans Sunday afternoon at the municipal stadium on account of rainy weather. Up until this morning a date for the contest had not been set.

N. C. (Tub) Morris, who is secretary of the Colorado Golf Association and a former state champion, this season started his 25th year as football coach at West Denver High School.

Reggie Coidagelli, halfback, and Ray Butler, tackle, of the Marquette University football team, spent the summer with the dave-devil drivers of Jimmy Lynch's "Death Dodgers."

The Independence team, champions of the southeastern Kansas division of the Ban Johnson baseball league, finished the season with a $1,200 profit.

Press Box Jottings

For awhile the game took on a likeness of a professional tussle when no love was lost with each tackle. At the end of the third quarter Ken Hopper and Seiber were ousted from the hectic battle after a run-in. Although Kingston received more penalties they had an advantage over Port's Red and Black Raiders. Ashdown's punting, averaging about 35 yards to a kick, was the Maroon's mainstay. On the other hand, the work of Johnny Ennis, Jay DeWitt and Jack Fallon was good for three star ratings. Lemister replaced Nock in the starting lineup. Throughout the game both had their share of tackles. When Benjamin romped over for the deciding touchdown Ashdown, turned in some nifty blocking. Kingston returns to the stadium next week when Highland comes to town. Then on Tuesday, Nov. 7, Kingston, Newburgh appears here. If Kingston wins, the trophy will be theirs. But that's something else. Jack Fallon's passing had a lot to do with the victory too.

They finally took the wraps off of two Kingston High School unheard of football gridders Saturday afternoon and the move proved to be the deciding point in the battle with Port Jervis, a DUSO League tussle which the Kiamen came through with an unexpected 13 to 6 triumph. The two were Fred Tucker and Joe Benjamin who collected 12 of the 13 markers.

The victory, number two in league competition, enables the Maroon and White representatives for a good shot at the Hamilton Fish trophy. On Thanksgiving Day the Kiamen will meet Newburgh which will surely decide the positive winner of the coveted prize.

White Benjamin and Tucker were registering the two all-important six markers apiece, the entire Kingston machine, end to end and all of the secondary, had a chunk in the final count. Jim Ashdown's kicking, especially in the third stanza was outstanding. The savage and efficient blocking by DeWitt and Ennis was again a factor.

As in last week's tussle with Poughkeepsie the opening minutes were important. The Maroon kicked off to Port and Quinn galloped from his 22 to the 34. Four power drives at the flanks and center spot failed to materialize any noticeable gain. Then Dunn booted to the Maroon 44. Now for the first break of the game and it wasn't in the Kiamen's favor. On the first try through the forward wall, Jay DeWitt was solidly smacked from the side and by the fierce impact the sphere went bouncing from his grasp. Spotting the fumble Norm Goodfellow rushed in and rushed up and recovered on the locals' 45. Two line plunges took it to the 42 and from here Dunn lifted a pass to Rutan who was bumped on the 37. Two more drives climaxed by a reverse from Rutan to Quinn, advanced Port to the 15 and another first down. Dunn slashed off tackle on the three and then to the one. On fourth down Junie Quinn received the ball from Rutan and cracked over his left tackle slot for the touchdown. Seiber's attempt for the extra marker was low.

Maroon Score

Two passes, one by Jack Fallon and Jim Ashdown, brought some hope to the Kias-coached team in the second quarter. Fallon chucked one to Ashdown who was dumped on the Port 40. Benjamin rocked to the 37. Ashdown then faded back, cocked his arm and let go with a scorching to Fallon who tackled on Port's 18. Kingston still needed a drive and gained to the 10. The Maroon drive was momentarily halted here as Captain Fallon was swarmed under for a nine-yard loss, putting the oval back on the 19. After an incomplete pass, Fallon dropped back again and lofted one to Tucker who grabbed the ball on the five. Despite a few tacklers grappling at his legs, Tucker scampered across the pay-off line for a touchdown. Fallon's pass to DeWitt was good for the point and Kingston now led by 7 to 6.

Throughout the third stanza both clubs suffered a batch of penalties. Finally, when the period nearly closed, the Maroon gridders cleared off three successive first downs storming to the Chasemen's 12 from their own 41, a sustained drive of 47 yards. Port received another setback as an off side penalty placed the pigskin on the seven. Giving Port some of its own razzle-dazzle stuff, Benjamin waited in the backfield with DeWitt on the side. Taking the ball from center, Benjamin feigned a fake reverse nicely to Jay and then bucked his way to the goal line and finally fell over for the score. Just before the period ended Hopper and Seiber were thumbed out of the fracas.

Leading by a comfortable margin of 13 to 6, and with Port hogged all the way through, Kingston turned its attention to defensive tactics. Port, however, continued to bomb with all of its possible tricks. But it wasn't in the books for Port.

Max more than anyone else led the nation's grief on the tragic occasions when King Albert and later Queen Astrid lost their lives. He has the friendship both of the Queen Mother Elizabeth and of King Albert, with whom he almost ranked in greatness in the eyes of Belgians.

A lawyer by profession, Max was born December 31, 1869, and was graduated as Doctor of Law at Brussels University at the age of 25.

On October 3, 1903, he was elected member of Brussels city council, after nine years as provincial councillor for Brabant. He soon forged ahead to a position of leadership in both the municipal and national Liberal groups, eventually sharing with his old friend Paul Hymans, former foreign minister, the control of the Liberty party.

FDR Declines Plymouth's Bid; Maine Is in Muddle Over Date

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt sent his regrets today to the committee which invited him to participate in Plymouth's November 30th Thanksgiving Day observance. The President has sought to have the holiday observed on the 23rd, but he conveyed a hope Plymouth's observance on the later date would be "successful."

A letter signed by Edwin M. Watson of his secretariat, read: "Please accept the President's thanks for your letter of November 1, in which you extended to him an invitation to participate in the observance of Thanksgiving Day to be held at Plymouth November 30."

"The President has asked me to convey to you an expression of his sincere regret that tentative engagements already made preclude acceptance of your invitation; also his hope that the ceremonies at Plymouth are successful in every way."

Situation Muddled

Auguste, Me., Nov. 6 (AP)—The Thanksgiving Day situation in Maine was muddled rather than clarified today by Gov. Lewis O. Barrows' formal proclamation that the holiday should be observed on November 30.

Attorney General Franz P. Burkett has said that, under Maine law, President Roosevelt's choice of a date—November 23—also must be observed, at least by the banks.

And from Chief Justice Charles J. Dunn of the state's Supreme Court, Burkett said, came word that the courts, too, would mark the day twice.

So Maine apparently joins Mississippi, Colorado and Texas in double celebration. The other 44 states are evenly divided between the traditional fourth Thursday of November and the President's third Thursday.

State Will Probe Michigan Prison; Guard Is Killed

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 6 (AP)—A melodramatic Sunday afternoon prison break, foiled only after a guard was killed and a woman visitor wounded by stray shot, prompted a state investigation today at Southern Michigan Penitentiary.

During the football game—a part of the prison's Sabbath recreation program—six escaping convicts overpowered two guards and a prison officer in a stealthy maneuver to flee over the walls. By the time five had clambered down a crude ladder of rope and piper, the alarm was sounded and the prison exercise lot, where 3,000 convicts watched the game, had been ordered cleared.

Three of the fleeing felons—Sam Sawaya, 26, and George Bodie, 28, robbers, and Malcolm Stokes, rapist—dashed into a guard's car. Chief Guard Inspector Fred Boucher, 54, tried to halt them, and was killed by a shotgun blast.

A second shot went wild, and

Mrs. Dorothy Roberts of Kalamazoo, visitor at the prison, was struck in the face by a pellet. She was only slightly hurt.

Prison officials said the shotgun was that taken from Russell Day, roof tower guard whom the six overpowered after gaining the roof by tricking him into believing his relief guard was on hand.

The three, in the car belonging to Day, sped off, leaving their fellow-conspirators behind. A chase of a mile and a half ended with their surrender after Deputy Warden Glenn Carpenter's revolver shot tore open a tire on the fugitives' machine.

Meanwhile, guards captured Paul Lawman, 35, and John L. Sullivan, 35, both serving robbery terms, near the prison wall, and Leo Thifault, 24, also a robber, fell captive as he hid behind a cupola on the roof.
